What is the minimum wage system?

A system which guarantees the minimum amount of wages (minimum wages) for all workers!

The minimum wage system applies to all workers, regardless of age, part-timer, or student.

Is your wage more than the minimum wage?

Convert the wage you wish to check into an hourly wage and compare it with the minimum wage (per hour)!

1 For an hourly wage $\text{Your hourly wage} \geq \text{the minimum wage (per hour)}$

2 For a daily wage $\text{Your daily wage} \div \text{average prescribed working hours for one day (convert to hourly wage)} \geq \text{the minimum wage (per hour)}$

3 Monthly wage $\text{Your monthly wage} \div \text{average prescribed working hours for one month (convert to hourly wage)} \geq \text{the minimum wage (per hour)}$

4 Your wage is a combination of 1 – 3 above

For example, if your base pay is a daily wage and various other forms of compensation (such as a duty allowance) are paid monthly

- ① Base pay (per day) → Calculate hourly wage using method 2
- ② Various other compensation (monthly wage) → Calculate hourly wage using method 3
- ③ Total of ① + ② \geq the minimum wage(per hour)

(※1) The following wages shall not be included in the wages.

① Extraordinary Wages (marriage allowance, etc.) ② Special Wages which are paid periodically for a period exceeding 1 months (bonuses) ③ Wages other than those normally paid for working hours or working days (premium wages for overtime work, etc.) ④ Wages other than those normally paid for working days (premium wages for work on days off, etc.) ⑤ Any portion of wages paid which exceed the standard calculated rate of wages for hours worked between 10:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. (premium wages for night work, etc.) ⑥ Long-service allowance, good attendance allowances, commutation allowances, and family allowances

(※2) For the minimum wages for specific industries established as a daily wage, the formula is as follows: Wage converted to daily wage \geq specific the minimum wage
